

- Dates for your diary:
- Monday: Swimming and Attention Autism Art. Julie will no longer be with us on Mondays but we are welcoming Claire who will be her cover!
- Tuesday: Shopping at Tesco. I have slightly altered the timetable to ensure that we have the bus ready for our community visits and that Julie is available to drive us.
- Tuesday: Drumming for some.
- Thursday: Soft play for some and focused numeracy/literacy for those staying at school!
- Friday: Our community visit and some time chilling to some relaxing music in the sensory room!

Wishing you an exciting weekend! - Dan, Caroline, Jo, Nick, and Julie

Don't forget to keep checking our school website for lots of info and links to useful sites.

And we're back! 24.02.17

We have had a very busy first week back to school! It was lovely to read through all of the weekend news booms and see what you and your children have been up to. We had a very informative teacher training day on Monday, focusing on subjects such as Attention Autism and ABA as well as Lego Therapy! These are activities that I am interested in utilizing across the classroom.

Tuesday was spent shopping for ingredients for cooking. We have decided to think of recipes for sweet treats. The children were fabulously behaved and were a real example to the school. We paid for the shopping with our money and were very polite.

I wasn't in school on Wednesday morning as I was attending a course on managing anxiety and anger in pupils with autism. It was very informative and it was great to share some ideas and strategies with other professionals across the county. In the afternoon, we put the wheels in motion for our cooking session, during which we made Nutella chocolate brownies! They tasted delicious and were easy!

Thursday saw our usual group go to soft play and our numeracy and literacy focus groups commence. Tom and Alfie were fantastic at distinguishing between heavy and light and as a result have hit their targets, which is brilliant! We also thought about asking and answering questions to gather information and Arran was brilliant at this.

Friday saw our trip to Farleigh Farm Shop, during which Amy was an absolute superstar! She ate her snack and then myself and Amy went for a walk around the shop looking at all of the lovely things. We then came back to school and did a science session rounded off with chill out time in the sensory room.

Have a great weekend!
Cheers, Dan
