Gill, Caroline, Naomi, Julie, Claire, Amanda and Alex and our MDSA: Yvonne.

Don't forget to keep checking our school website for lots of info and links to useful sites.

Apologies for the delay with this weeks news but I was out of school on Thursday and Friday.

On Monday the "story" session was all about being able to say no clearly—

On Tuesday more exploration of materials and how they change for recycling by squashing/tearing in Attention Science.

I love to see our young people flicking through their news books to find favourite pages and to tell us the memory they have whether its about it raining when they went out, going somewhere with a friend or recognizing themselves in a photo. Thank you for making this lesson work by sending me photos of your child's weekend.

On Wednesday we had a speedy walk to Tesco's and noted how well we are walking there now.

In the afternoon we continued to work on personal targets for communication while making art by printing with recycled tins dipped into paint to create circles.

On Thursday Brandon had a fabulous session at the gym really getting the hang of the treadmill. Back in school it was sensory maths with balloons with numbers on that when burst revealed their hidden contents.....much anticipation....followed by how many things can you get dressed in (in order) before the countdown clock stopped as we are thinking about time. In the afternoon - no more soup...hurray, we made apple muffins.

Fridays trip to Bradford on Avon park went well and lots of communication or physio targets were achieved.

Photos overleaf are of fun had in choosing time—exploring shaving foam and dressing up to tell stories.

STAR OF THE WEEK:

Tom for such a super news lesson—really focussed and coped with the sticking symbols in his book very well and explained what he had done.
