

14th June 2019

Hello!

Firstly, I feel I ought to apologise for jinxing the weather by sending out the sun cream letter! It has been a very soggy week! I am hoping that it won't rain constantly to the end of term, so if you have yet to return the permission slip, please do so ASAP – just in case the sun does come out soon! If you need a new one, just pop a note in the home/school book.

Don't forget, we cannot apply sun cream without your permission.

This term, we are continuing with our Fantasy theme and Robins will be heading out onto the seven seas on a few pirating adventures. This week we have had fun making pirate ships out of cardboard boxes; firing canon-balls to sink the pirate ships; we've looked for buried treasure and we have made some excellent pirate puddings. The Robins have taken to pirating like ducks to water!

On Thursday 27th June, we will be having a pirate adventure with Becky, our Artist in Residence. I am not sure how messy we might get, but pirating can be a messy job, so please send in some old clothes for your child on that day – just in case! I will remind you nearer the time...

And talking of spare clothes, please can you have a look and see if you have any clothing belonging to Robins Class hanging around at home? We are particularly short of trousers and socks at the moment (and I bought 5 new pairs of socks only last week! They are either stripy or they have anchors on). Thank You!

Wishing you all a wonderful weekend!

Rachel ☺
