Ohhhh we're half way thereee! 17/03/2017

Hello!

We are officially half way through the spring term and have worked very hard! We are all certainly well deserving of the Easter break and of course all of the chocolate that comes with it!

This week has been pretty action packed and we have been going non stop! Swimming took place on the usual Monday and lots of fantastic swimming was happening. Monday afternoon was Attention Autism Art with the focus of clay and sculptures. The children were asked to choose a photograph of a friend in Finches class and then mold their faces into a clay model. There was some excellent master-pieces created!

Tuesday saw a trip to the shops to gather some much needed snack resources! We collected some biscuits, some fruit winders and some squash. After our shopping trip, we went for a well deserved drink and snack in Tesco café! Tuesday afternoon was spent with Mrs. Williams whilst I was out of class. The children are responding very well to her music sessions and are consistently engaged.

Wednesday morning saw some positive communication during our session as well as some impressive dance moves! The children were also able to recount most parts of our sensory story, which is fab! Our cookery session involved making lots of delicious cheese straws, which James was a huge fan of!

We are almost coming towards the end of our focus on "Heavy" and "Light" during our maths sessions and Alfie, Tom, Arran and Amy have really understood the concept very well! They are equally as excellent with asking and answering questions!

Friday was our trip to the café as well as some chill out time in the sensory room! Have a lovely weekend!
Cheers, Dan

- Dates for your diary:
- Monday: Swimming and Attention Autism Art. Julie will no longer be with us on Mondays but we are welcoming Claire who will be her cover!
- Tuesday: Shopping at Tesco. I have slightly altered the timetable to ensure that we have the bus ready for our community visits and that Julie is available to drive us.
- Tuesday: Drumming for some.
- Thursday: Soft play for some and focused numeracy/literacy for those staying at school!
- Friday: Our community visit and some time chilling to some relaxing music in the sensory room!

Wishing you an exciting weekend! -
Dan, Caroline, Jo,
Nick, and Julie
