A strange week for all I'm sure but most have coped with the fact that Tuesday was a no school day or they have coped with coughs and colds...that time of year!

Next week all returns to the familiar norm and hydro is re-opened at last!

It was a lovely walk to Budgens for our shopping . Sun shining and happy people. In the afternoon our Attention art session was all about hands. Good attention for the "bucket" toys which included brightly coloured hand dusters ...who will get tickled...

In keeping with the sun still shining we added the sun worship to our yoga sequence this week—Connor and Rhiannon and Tom excelled this week..

In cookery we made chocolate banana milkshakes and everyone tried them. We had some people rushing with excitement to press the switch on the mixer and others loving watching from a distance.

We have had a major issue with the school email account today and at present I cannot email out or receive emails so if you have sent a message today I will not have received it.. Hopefully it will be fixed over the weekend but I will send a reply to you so you know if I have received the news emails.

This week we celebrate: . Rhiannon for lovely sentences to express herself
* James for coping better with the lights in food tech room
* Reece for trying hard with his physio work*
Rossi for being very vocal and saying bye and hi*

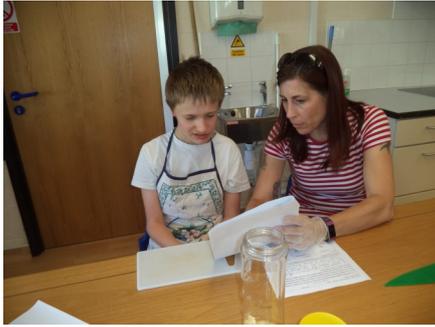

STAR OF THE WEEK : Connor for great Yoga !

What I have been hearing about ...

Tom's family visited Wild Wood in Kent last weekend and highly recommend it as a place to visit ...well set up for supporting people with SEN and also a fabulous play area too.
